

Session Three

The Basics of Contributed Income

Fundraising & Finance

Contributions can throw a wrench into the mission if not handled right. This session will explore two issues that frequently give managers headaches; contributions and net assets. From recognizing when something is a contribution to following the donor's intent, we will go over the basics to help your nonprofit handle these transactions correctly.

Alan Strand has an extensive background in nonprofit accounting, primarily at the California Association of Nonprofits as Director of Finance and Quality Reporting and as a consultant. He developed the content for "My Financial Management Plan" for the Nonprofit Risk Management Center, and is an experienced trainer. Alan joined the Nonprofit Center in November as the Senior Program Director where he manages the Center's financial services and markets the Center's programs.
